

Training Adults (Introduction)

Overview

Simply telling or lecturing adult students engages them at the lowest level possible and produces only about 5% retention on the part of students, while adults exposed to real training retain up to 90% of the content taught. To achieve the 90% level of success trainers must use adult learning principles to design and deliver training. This training presents the fundamentals of how to train adults.

Objectives

Upon completion of this training, participants will be able to:

1. Discuss adult learning principles
2. Describe the actions trainers can take to ensure training is designed for adults
3. Plan a training session using the Training Session Planning Sheet

Prerequisites

Web-based reading assignment

Delivery Method (Course Activities)

Classroom activities include the presentation of adult learning principles by the instructor with students involved in numerous activities and exercises to reinforce learning. The culminating project is to design a lesson using the Training Session Planning sheet. This is accomplished in small groups.

Duration

8 hours

Target Audience

Employees assigned training responsibilities.

NEDC Contact Person

Clyde L. Goodman, Employee Development Specialist 817/509-3256